March SPOTLIGHT:

Biomedical Device Manufacturing

Working with Boston Scientific, COC's FastTrack Institute has developed a special session of its Manufacturing Assembler & Technician Training (MATT) Program targeted at the skills necessary to be successful as a biomedical device assembler. Orientation and recruiting for this program is scheduled for March 8th at the COC University Center. In addition to general manufacturing and clean room skills, the program will also include specialized micro soldering certifications that the industry desires. For more information or to register for the recruitment please contact us.
